Thatched Roof Village

The atmosphere of the old village is absolutely charming. The lovely, old buildings are surrounded by fresh green mountains and peaceful woods. This fairytale like area brings you back to a time when people made their own tools and lived in perfect harmony with nature.

Miyama Folk Museum

More than 200 items are presented in the museum that itself is a thatched roof-building. We can see farming tools and traditional items used in everyday life, and there are lanterns, pillows and daily commodities on display as well. Most of the exhibits were donated by families living around Miyama Town.

Kurama-dera Temple

One of the most popular sightseeing spots in Kyoto!

If you like hiking, walking in the forest and being surrounded by mysterious temples, you will fall in love with this place. The graceful buildings along the steep wooded mountainside above the town and the spectacular scenery enchant even the most experienced travellers!

Jōshōkō-ji Temple

This charming Zen temple is worth a stop on the way back to Kyoto. It was established in the Muromachi period (1336-1573) and has a long history of serving the Imperial Household.
